Subject: Special Data Call
New Hampshire Tornado Losses

The July 24th tornado that affected multiple communities in New Hampshire is having a significant impact on property owners in the state. As an insurer writing business in New Hampshire, the Department understands that you are receiving calls and inquiries from your insureds as a result of the storm.

In order for the Department to fully understand and quantify the magnitude of insured and any uninsured losses resulting, and the effect on New Hampshire citizens and communities, I am directing all insurers licensed by New Hampshire and who write property and casualty insurance, to respond to a special data call. The data call consists of a series of five reports, due on various dates over the next three months. The Department is requesting that the claims be grouped by community and that the losses be split into three categories; the actual damage to property, losses associated with living expenses or business interruption, and debris removal. This data call will provide the Department with information about claim count and loss dollars associated with the tornado.

The report and instructions can be found on the Department's website, www.nh.gov/insurance. The report is available as an Excel spreadsheet to facilitate its completion. Questions about the report and the process for submitting the report should be directed to Deb Stone, Assistant P&C Actuary, (603) 271-7973 x258 or deborah.stone@ins.nh.gov.
