VILLAGESCAPES: Planning For The Places Where We Live

OCTOBER 18, 1997 8:00 AM - 3:00 PM

MOUNTAIN CLUB AT LOON, LINCOLN, NEW HAMPSHIRE

DETAILED AGENDA:

8:00 - 8:30 AM Registration

8:30 - 8:45 AM Orientation
Jeffrey H. Taylor, Director, Office of State Planning

8:45 - 10:15 AM "The Lost Language of Villages"
David Howard, President, Village Company of New England, Walpole, NH

Join David Howard for an entertaining and thought provoking session on villages, what it takes to plan them, how to keep them functioning, and why they seem to make places more livable. Perhaps David will even share with us his top ten qualities that make a "good New England Village."

10:15 - 10:30 AM BREAK

10:30 - 12:00 PM CONCURRENT SESSIONS

Track I Solving Transportation Issues
Stephen Burrington, Conservation Law Foundation

Explore with our speakers some of the innovative ways to address transportation needs yet still keep that small town feel to your community. Stephen Burrington is the author of a 1995 publication entitled "Take Back Your Streets" and will share some of his ideas on approaching street and road design from a community wide perspective.

Track II Design Principles
Pat Sherman, Principal, Sherman, Greiner, Halle, AIA, ASLA

This session will focus on understanding the link between physical design and a community's sense of place. Learn how design can help to create that sense of connection between space and that elusive community feel we all seek out in some way.

Track III

Zoning & Regulation Techniques

Evan Richert, Director, Maine Office of State Planning

Your struggle to make your regulations truly reflect a livable community will definitely be helped by this session. Both as a consultant and now Director of State Planning, Evan Richert has worked with several local communities in Maine (including Camden and Kennebunk) to rewrite their ordinances. Some of the key points of his presentation include: How do you get your ordinance to emphasize the village and its immediate area as the focus of growth? What do you need to do before you propose new standards or changes to your ordinance? How do you preserve what you have and still allow flexibility?

12:00 - 1:15 PM

LUNCH

1:15 - 3:00 PM

PLENARY SESSION: Some Local New Hampshire Examples

Jason Hoch, Executive Director, Littleton Main Street, Inc.

Peter Ryner, Community Development Director, Peterborough

Listen to our panel of speakers share their experiences from the towns of Littleton & Peterborough. The discussion will focus on each community's innovative approaches toward making the village center the focus of the community.
