Scope of Project:

Background: The NH Poetry Out Loud (POL) Program is part of a national network of Poetry Out Loud programs sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts in partnership with the Poetry Foundation. State arts agencies are provided funds to implement state programs. POL allows high school students from private and public high schools to participate in a three-week poetry curriculum, aimed to encourage the nation's youth to learn about great poetry through memorization and performance. The curriculum, provided by the National Endowment for the Arts, can be varied to fit a school's needs. POL uses a pyramid structure where students progress from classroom competitions, to regional competitions and a statewide championship competition. State champions then progress to the National Competition in Washington, D.C.

In New Hampshire, the program has capacity for up to 40 high schools (including public, private and home schooled consortia). The NH project plan calls for: two teacher orientation meetings for participating schools at different locations in the state; two to three on site orientations for teachers unable to attend the group orientations; up to four regional semi-final competitions strategically located around the state to best accommodate participating high schools and a state final competition located in central NH.

The NH POL project implementation and budget is overseen by NHSCA Arts in Education

Coordinator and implemented through the contracted services.
